The Certified Employment Support Professional (CESP) Credential

The Certified Employment Support Professional (CESP) credential recognizes individuals who have demonstrated a sufficient level of knowledge and skill to provide integrated employment support services to a variety of client populations. The CESP credential is intended to help employers, employees and potential employees by increasing the visibility of – and access to – competent individuals in the profession.

Individuals who earn the CESP credential have demonstrated knowledge of the facilitation and advocacy skills necessary to help establish and expand equitable employment opportunities for individuals with disabilities. CESP also raise awareness of benefits within the business community, and promote social change that fosters an independent, productive lifestyle for individuals with disabilities.

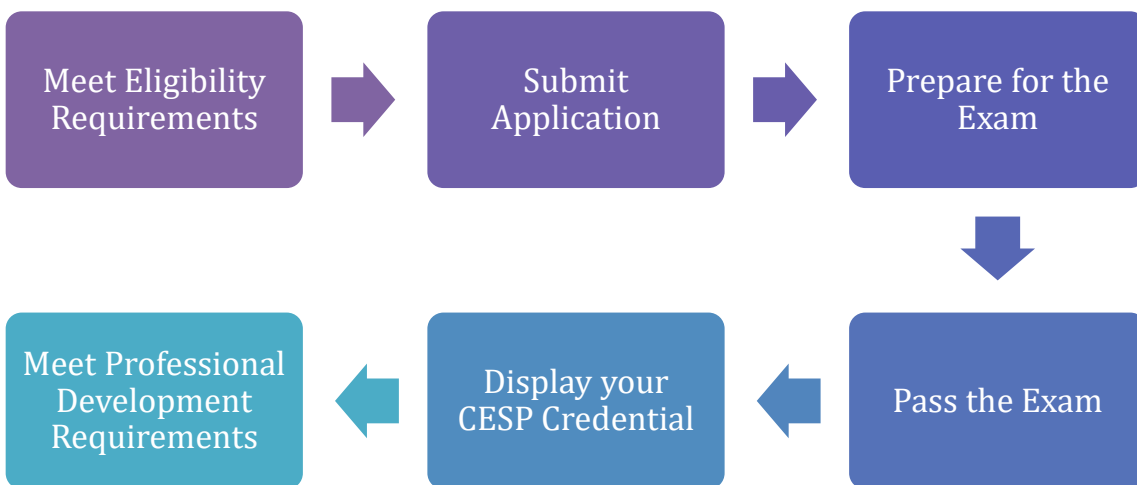

About ESPCC

The Employment Support Professional Certification Council (ESPCC) was established in 2011 by the APSE Board of Directors to establish and implement policies and procedures for the CESP certification program and to oversee the development of the CESP examination. The ESPCC is responsible for developing and overseeing all aspects of the certification program.

What is Certification

ESPCC developed the Certified Employment Support Professional (CESP) program to set a standard of knowledge and distinguish employment support professionals who have shown they have the skill and competence to perform the requirements of the job.

Professional certification is different than a training or educational program. Training programs offer a certificate of attendance when an individual completes the coursework, but they do not give a credential. ESPCC used a nationally recognized process to define the roles and responsibilities of the employment support professional and awards a credential after the individual passes an exam to demonstrate their competence.

Benefits of CESP Certification

This is your chance to make your mark and set an example as one of the original holders of the CESP credential. Take the next step with your job and earn the CESP designation.

- Earning the CESP shows colleagues, clients and supervisors that you completed a rigorous process to make sure your knowledge and skills are up to date.
- The CESP certification opens up more job opportunities and fulfills personal and professional career goals.
- Earning the CESP credential increases your credibility with community business leaders and opens the door to new employment opportunities for people with disabilities.

Applying for Certification

Eligibility

ESPCC has developed requirements for eligibility to ensure that the application process is fair and impartial. Each eligibility requirement has been established to ensure that individuals certified by ESPCC have an acceptable level of knowledge — as demonstrated by the exam requirements — and skill — as demonstrated by the experience requirement — needed to provide employment support services at an entry level. In establishing these requirements, the ESPCC acknowledges that a combination of both work experience and demonstrated knowledge are essential for Certified Employment Support Professionals (CESPs).

ESPCC is committed to providing a fair and objective certification process. All individuals who seek certification must meet the established eligibility requirements before taking the exam. Candidates for CESP certification must meet all eligibility requirements in effect at the time of their application for certification.

Applicants for certification must meet all of the following requirements before they take the exam:

1. Education Requirement — High school diploma, GED or equivalent
2. Experience Requirement — Each applicant must meet one of the following requirements:
 - a. 1 year of employment support professional (ESP) work experience as defined below, which may include up to a maximum of 3 months of internship or practicum time
 - OR
 - b. 9 months of ESP work experience with training component as defined below
3. Code of Conduct — Each applicant must agree to and sign the Code of Conduct

To earn the certification applicants must meet all of the eligibility requirements and pass the examination. Membership in APSE, or any other organization, is neither a requirement nor does it award any credit toward eligibility.

Definitions:

Work Experience: A minimum of 20 hours per week of paid Employment Support Professional (ESP) related work is required. Examples of paid ESP related work are:

- Work directly related to providing and/or supporting community-based employment services.
- Employment as a direct employment services professional, provision of direct employment services as an agency/company employee, and/or managerial or supervisory work in employment services.
- Experience in school-to-work transition environments providing ESP service.
- Work completed as part of an internship, practicum, or other on-the-job training may be counted to the limits noted in the training definition.

Note Work related to residential and/or non-employment day services, or segregated employment services will not be accepted.

Training is defined as an internship or practicum of at least 2 months in length and/or successful completion of an intensive training course that includes at least 32 hours of ESP related course work. The content for acceptable training courses must be directly related to the CESP content outline. Acceptable training content is related to supported and customized employment as well as training relevant to providing employment and community based supports to people with disabilities. Examples of acceptable training content includes: specialized training to work with specific disability groups (i.e. autism or mental illness), training on small businesses development, American with Disabilities Act (ADA) training, benefits counseling, and strategies for job development. Training related to segregated employment services or services that are not widely considered to be best practices will not be accepted.

Eligibility Review and Verification:

Only completed applications for certification will be accepted. Incomplete applications will be returned to the applicant.

ESPCC will randomly select applications for verification audit. Applicants selected for audit must provide evidence that each eligibility requirement has been met. Applicants who fail to demonstrate that they meet all of the eligibility requirements will not be permitted to take the exam. In the case of individuals who have already taken the exam, failure to demonstrate compliance with all eligibility requirements may result in the revocation of the credential.

Acceptable evidence includes a high school diploma or transcript, certificate of completion for training, written verification from a supervisor, etc. ESPCC will contact supervisors as needed to verify work, internship, and/or practicum experience.

Nondiscrimination

July 5,2017

APSE and ESPCC do not discriminate based on race, color, national origin, sex, age, religion, marital status, sexual orientation, or any other status that is protected by applicable law.

Eligibility Denial

Applicants who are notified that they do not meet the eligibility requirements may appeal this decision by sending a written notice of the appeal to the ESPCC within 30 days of receipt of the adverse eligibility decision. The ESPCC director will forward the notice to the Certification Council for review.

The Certification Council will review the applicant's information and will make a final decision regarding eligibility. No new or additional information may be submitted with the appeal request. The eligibility appeal will be reviewed within 45 days of receipt. Written notice of the final decision will be sent to the applicant within 30 days of the review.

Preparing for the Exam

Studying for the Exam

The CESP exam is a multiple-choice exam and is currently offered only in English.

The exam is based on the results of a national Role Delineation Study and the resulting content outline. The exam includes questions from each content area in the percentage ranges noted below. Candidates should carefully review the content outline below as they prepare for the exam.

Glossary of Employment Support Professional Terms

Benefits Counseling and Benefits Analysis: Services provided to assist an individual in understanding the options and possibilities in order to make an informed choice about going to work. These services result in a report that reviews a person's assets and income to make an informed choice about employment.

Business Proposals (Job Carving): The process of listing the key components of jobs and employment needs to develop a written proposal for an employer on how those needs can be met. A proposal typically includes language identifying job tasks for increased work efficiencies and the matching of an individual's skills with workplace needs. This process can result in either job restructuring or job creation.

Career Seeker Portfolio: A job-hunting tool that developed to provide employers a complete picture of the job seekers experience, education, accomplishments, skill sets, and potential.

Employment: Competitive employment is work performed in the integrated labor market in which the individual is compensated at or above minimum wage, but not less than the customary wage and benefits paid for the same or similar work performed by individuals who do not have a disability.

Employment First: The philosophy that presumes employability of all people in the community regardless of disability. Components include:

- Being the first and preferred outcome for working-age youth and adults with disabilities, including those with complex and significant disabilities, for whom working in the past has been limited, or has not traditionally occurred,
- Using typical or customized employment techniques to secure membership in the workforce, where employees with disabilities are included on the payroll of a competitive business or industry or are self-employed business owners,
- Where the assigned work tasks offer at least minimum or prevailing wages and benefits,
- And where typical opportunities exist for integration and interactions with co-workers without disabilities, with customers, and/or the general public.

Employment Supports: A set of services that are used to introduce, prepare, monitor, and facilitate individuals with disabilities to seek and maintain employment. These may also include supports provided to or by an employer.

Employment Support Professional (ESP): A professional who assists individuals in obtaining and maintaining integrated employment by meeting the needs of businesses in the community. There are three levels of certification to become an ESP.

Job Developer: Professional who matches employers to employees through pairing targeted business needs with an individual's transferable skills.

Job Trainer/Job Coach: A professional who provides necessary supports during the initial employment period to assist the employee to perform their job tasks to the employer's specifications and then facilitates the transition to natural workplace supports while reducing his or her role.

Natural Supports: Support from supervisors and co-workers occurring in the workplace to assist employees with disabilities to perform their jobs, including supports already provided by employers for all employees. These natural supports may be both formal and informal, and include mentoring, supervision (ongoing feedback on job performance), training (learning a new job skill with a co-worker) and co-workers socializing with employees with disabilities at breaks or after work.

Person-Centered Planning: Person Centered Planning is an ongoing problem-solving process used to help people with disabilities plan for their future. In person centered planning, groups of people focus on an individual and that person's vision of what they would like to do in the future. This "person-centered" team meets to identify opportunities for the focus person to develop personal relationships, participate in their community, increase control over their own lives, and develop the skills and abilities needed to achieve these goals. Person Centered Planning depends on the commitment of a team of individuals who care about the focus person. These individuals take action to make sure that the strategies discussed in planning meetings are implemented.

People First Language: People First Language (PFL) represents more respectful, accurate ways of communicating. People with disabilities are not their diagnoses or disabilities; they are people, first.

Systematic Instruction: Materials and instruction are organized to follow the logical order of the language. The sequence of the instruction proceeds methodically from the easiest and most basic elements to more difficult and complex material.

Task Analysis: The process of breaking down a job into smaller steps for the purpose of teaching the job tasks to an employee in achievable parts over time.

Vocational Assessment: Formal and informal processes used to explore an individual's interests, abilities, and aptitudes in order to identify vocational assets, barriers, support needs and career potential.

Workplace Culture: Workplace culture can be defined as the "way of life" for those in a particular workplace. This has many elements including: laws, language, fashion, authorities, power relationships, conventions, conflict management processes, dispute resolution processes.

Strategies for Taking Multiple Choice Exams

- Read each question carefully before choosing the single best response.
- Pace yourself; sometimes it helps to answer the easiest questions first.
- If you are not sure about an answer, make an educated guess. Your score is based on the total number of correct answers.
- Responses are in random order. Looking for patterns won't help you.
- Be sure to mark your answers neatly, clearly, and in the correct space. Erase any stray pencil marks.

How the Exam was Developed

In January 2011, ESPCC launched the first major project in the development of a national certification program, a role delineation study (RDS).

A representative panel of nine subject matter experts (SMEs) held a 2-day meeting to develop the RDS to correspond to the job content elements that are related to effective entry-level ESP performance. Established reference materials from the profession were used to identify 80 content elements grouped into content domains, sequenced in the order in which they are most typically performed.

The RDS survey was conducted in the form of an electronic survey. Two rating scales, frequency and criticality, were developed to evaluate the content items. The ultimate goal was to rank content items from most relevant to least relevant with regard to on-the-job performance. Both rating scales had three reference points. Twelve demographic items were included as well, to evaluate the representativeness of the respondent sample.

Following a pilot survey, the final survey was disseminated, data collected, and results analyzed. Means and standard deviations were computed for each of the content items. Combining the criticality and frequency means for each of the six content domains resulted in the basis for the exam content outline. The content outline was reviewed, revised (primarily by combining two of the domains for better balance), and finalized by a group of SMEs.

Following the approval of the content outline a diverse group of exam question writers were recruited and trained to submit questions for the exam. Questions were subsequently reviewed by additional SMEs before being assembled into an exam for a final quality check and review.

Following each administration of the exam, question statistics are calculated and reviewed along with candidate feedback to identify any concerns or areas for improvement. When appropriate, questions are removed from grading. Following this quality assurance step exam grading is finalized and score reports are issued to candidates.

The ESPCC oversees a continual process of question writing, review and evaluation to ensure that exam content remains up-to-date, accurate, and consistent with the content outline.

What to Expect on Exam Day

To provide a fair and consistent environment for all candidates, the exam is delivered using standardized procedures and following strict security protocols. - Candidates should arrive 30 minutes prior to the scheduled start of the exam. Late arrivals cannot be accommodated. The exam session will last for 3 full hours (in addition to check-in).

Accommodations

ESPCC will provide reasonable and appropriate accommodations in accordance with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) for individuals with documented disabilities who request and demonstrate the need for accommodation. ADA regulations define a person with a disability as someone with a physical or mental impairment that substantially limits one or more major life activities. ESPCC requires documentation to validate the type and severity of a disability to enable accommodations to be specifically matched with the identified functional limitation, in order to provide equal access to exam functions for all examinees. Accommodations must be requested in advance using the request for accommodations form in this handbook.

After the Exam

Exam Results

July 5, 2017

Test scoring and processing takes approximately 6-8 weeks. After scores have been reported, candidates will receive a results letter and score report. Results are sent via US Mail and are not released electronically or over the phone. Candidates are encouraged to report any change to contact information including email address, mailing address and phone number. New CESP™ certificants will receive their certificate 2-4 weeks after results notification.

Score reports will include the candidate's pass/fail status, overall score, and a sub score in each of the 5 content areas of the exam.

Understanding Your Score

A criterion-referenced standard setting process is used to establish the passing point for each exam. This means that each candidate's performance on the exam is measured against a predetermined standard. Candidates are not graded on a curve and do not compete against each other or against a quota.

This passing point is established using a panel of subject matter experts who carefully review each exam question to determine the basic level of knowledge or skill that is expected. The passing point for the exam is established to identify individuals with an acceptable level of knowledge and skill.

Receiving a higher than passing score is not an indication of more advanced knowledge or a predictor of better job performance. All individuals who pass the exam, regardless of their score, have demonstrated an acceptable level of knowledge.

Re-Testing

Candidates who fail the exam may re-test at any future exam site. A new application and examination fee must be submitted for each exam attempt.

Exam Appeals & Hand scoring

Candidates who fail the exam and believe there has been a scoring error or irregular testing conditions may file an appeal to the ESPCC. All appeal requests must be made in writing and postmarked or emailed no later than 7 days after the receipt of the exam score report. Candidates filing an appeal may request an opportunity to re-test due to disruptive exam conditions. All appeals must describe the suspected error or problem and the requested remedy. The results of the hand-score or other appeal will be final. Appeals should be submitted to CESP Director Cassy Beckman, at cassy@apse.org.

Candidates may also request a hand-scoring of their score sheet. An administrative fee will be charged to cover the costs of hand-scoring.

Complaints & Disciplinary Action

In order to maintain and enhance the credibility of the CESP certification program the ESPCC has adopted the procedures to allow individuals to bring complaints concerning the conduct of individuals who are CESP candidates or certificants' to the ESPCC. In the event an individual candidate or certificant violates the ESPCC Code of Conduct, CESP certification rules, or ESPCC policies the ESPCC may reprimand or suspend the individual or may revoke certification.

A complete copy of the complaints and disciplinary policy is available from ESPCC upon request.

Maintaining CESP Certification

ESPCC supports the ongoing professional development of its certificants. All certificants must recertify every 3 years. The recertification process provides certificants with the opportunity to demonstrate the reinforcement, retention, and maintenance of their knowledge and skills and the retention of their knowledge of current practice. Recertification also provides encouragement to, and acknowledgement for, participation in ongoing professional development activities. To support this purpose, recertification requires continuing education and professional activities that enhance ongoing professional development, recognize learning opportunities, and provide a process for both attaining and recording professional development achievements.

ESPCC requires periodic recertification to promote professional development for employment services professionals and to ensure that individuals who hold the credential maintain an ongoing commitment to learning in their area(s) of practice.

Professional development is accomplished by either obtaining the required number of continuing education credits or by passing the certification examination for which the content is periodically updated. Recertification by continuing education credits ensures that the individual has participated in professional development activities that are directly related to the provision of employment support services. Since the examination is updated periodically, recertification by examination also ensures that certificants have maintained their knowledge and skills during the time since initial certification.

The 3-year time period established for recertification is based on both the scope of issues that face employment services professionals and the ESPCC's belief that new practices, research, and information are introduced in the field with enough frequency that professional development activities should be conducted routinely so that certificants remain up to date with both current best practices and emerging knowledge.

ESPCC Policies

Confidentiality

Information about applicants and/or certificants and their examination results is considered confidential. Exam scores will be released only to the individual candidate unless a signed release is provided. Personal information submitted by applicants /certificants with an application or recertification application is considered confidential.

The ESPCC will not disclose confidential applicant /certificant information unless authorized in writing by the individual or as required by law. The names of CESP certified individuals and their certification status are not considered confidential and may be published by the ESPCC and/or APSE.

Aggregate exam statistics will be published periodically as a service to the profession and as a requirement for CESP accreditation. Aggregate exam statistics and related reports will describe performance by the population of candidates, not by specific individuals.

Use of the Credential

After receiving notification of CESP designation, the CESP credential may be used only as long as certification remains valid and in good standing. Individuals may not use the CESP credential until they have received specific written notification that they have successfully completed all requirements, including passing the exam. Certificants must comply with all recertification requirements to maintain use of the credential.
